5. Who has access to your personal data and to whom are they transferred?

Your personal data are processed internally by these employees of the Company who need to process them in order to carry out their duties and provide services to you. We do not share personal data with third parties, except when it is necessary to fulfil our obligations, to respond to your requests, to serve our legitimate interests, and/or as required by law.

To this purpose, we will share your data with our affiliated management company D Marinas Hellas Société Anonyme.

We may also share your personal data with persons or companies that we work with for the operation/technical support of our webpage, other service providers such as marketing companies, advertisers, media agencies for the purposes of marketing and research.

We may also have to provide your personal data to tax or other public authorities or to law enforcement agencies in order to comply with our statutory obligations or an order.

When we work with business partners, service providers or agencies which process your personal data on our behalf, we ensure that they are bound by contractual obligations to maintain the confidentiality and security of your personal data at least equivalent to those with which we are obliged to comply.

When we transfer personal data outside the EEA we ensure that adequate safeguards are taken as required by the GDPR. In this respect the Company has executed standard contractual clauses (as approved by EU Commission) for the transfer of personal data to our affiliated company D Marina İşletmeciliği Turizm ve Yönetim Hizmetleri Anonim Şirketi for the purpose of provision of management support and marketing services.

6. Protection of your personal data

We ensure that your personal data processed is secure against unauthorized processing, loss of confidentiality, integrity or availability by implementing appropriate technical and organizational measures such as malware protection, firewalls and cryptography technologies, access limitations, strictly defined employee tasks, trainings, internal and external audits, business continuity and recovery procedures. We also have in place data breach management procedures. We impose same obligations to third parties that process your personal data for the account of the Company.

7. How long do we retain your personal data?

We will keep and process your personal data only for as long as it is necessary for the fulfilment of the purpose for which they are processed or for the fulfilment of its legal obligations. The retention period may vary significantly depending on the category of the data. To determine the appropriate retention period of your personal data, we take into consideration also the nature and sensitivity of personal data, the time periods for which we are required by law or by contract to do so, the statute of limitations in order to be able to deal with potential claims, any outstanding or threatened court proceedings. The retention periods are provided in the Data Retention Policy of the Company.

8. Your privacy rights

You have the following rights with respect to your personal data

Right of information	You have the right to be informed about the processing of your personal data.
Right of access	You have the right to request access to your personal data being processed by the Company in a brief, comprehensible, transparent and easy manner.
Right of correction	You have the right to request from the Company to rectify any inaccurate or outdated personal data without undue delay or to complete any incomplete personal data of yours.
Right to be forgotten	You have the right to request from the Company to erase your personal data provided that the processing is not necessary for the purposes of processing. If for example the processing is necessary for the fulfillment of lawful obligations of the Company or for the defense of lawful rights of the Company, your request may be rejected.
Right to restrict the processing	You have the right to request from the Company to restrict the processing under certain conditions and only for specific purposes.
Right to object	You have the right to object on ground related to your particular situation at any time, in which case the Company is obliged to not further process your personal data unless there are compelling and lawful prevailing grounds.
Right to portability	You have the right to receive your personal data in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format and, in some cases, we shall transmit your data, upon your request, to another controller, provided this is technically feasible, unless the rights of others are adversely affected.
Right to revoke your consent	You have the right to revoke your consent at any time without prejudice to the legality of the processing based on your consent until that time. In any case the Company informs you that the revocation of your consent may entail that a contract cannot be performed and that, in such case, the Company has the right to terminate the contract with you.

For the exercise of your abovementioned rights and for any explanation or clarification in connection with the above, you may contact us by email at dpo@d-marin.com or send us a letter to the abovementioned registered address of the Company.

You also have the right to lodge a complaint with the competent supervisory authority, which is the Hellenic Data Protection Authority (www.dpa.gr).

The Company reserves the right to mend and update this Policy from time to time; so please check this page periodically.
